Program Notes

One of the great characters in music history, Gioachino Rossini (1792–1868) retired while at the height of his fame in 1829 when he was 37 years old. He was acknowledged as the greatest opera composer of his time and his speed and work habits were legendary: his most enduring opera, Il Barbiere di Siviglia (“The Barber of Seville”) was written in just two weeks, and he was said to write the overtures to his operas on the day of the first performance, dropping each page of music off the bed in which he reclined and wrote while copyists took the pages off the floor and wrote out the orchestral parts from his score. No one knows why he suddenly retired, but for the next 33 years he wrote just one significant work (his Stabat Mater for chorus and orchestra) and a large number of chamber works which he described as “the sins of my old age.”

This brings us to 1863, when Rossini, for reasons unknown, sat down and wrote his longest sacred work, the Petite Messe Solennelle. Composed for the dedication of a friend’s private chapel, Rossini wrote the following on the autograph page:

Petite messe solennelle, in four parts with accompaniment of two pianos and harmonium, composed during my country vacation at Passy. Twelve singers of three sexes—men, women and castrati—will be sufficient for its execution: that is, eight for the chorus, four for the solos, a total of twelve cherubim....Twelve also are the Apostles in the celebrated fresco painted by Leonardo called The Last Supper....Be assured Lord, I guarantee there will be no Judas at my Supper and that mine will sing in tune and with love your praises and this little composition which is, alas, the last mortal sin of my old age.

The piece was an instant success, both critically and commercially, and it didn't take long before his publisher began badgering Rossini to orchestrate the work to make it available for large chorus and orchestra. Convinced that his publisher would just get someone to do it after his death anyway, the ageing composer decided to do it himself in 1867, but it was not performed in this form until 1868, just after Rossini’s death. It was so popular that it received 14 performances in the first month in the Théâtre-Italien, and sixty performances the following year in France, Belgium and Holland. Today, however, the piece is usually presented in its original version with two pianos and harmonium and it has certainly been many years since the orchestral version was last heard in Philadelphia.

The Petite Messe Solennelle has too many wonderful details to cover a fraction of them in this short page of notes, but look at the text of each movement before the Chorus sings: whether he is singing heroic praises to God in “Domine Deus” (Lord God, King of Heaven), expressing his joy in his great fugue “Cum Sancto” (With the Holy Spirit, in the glory of God the Father), or closing the work with his remarkable setting of the “Agnus Dei” (Lamb of God, grant us peace) with its dramatic change from E minor to E major in the final statement of the text, Rossini always expresses the emotion of the text directly to the audience.

And in keeping with this direct expression of his feelings, Rossini wrote the following on the final page of the composition:

Well, this poor little Mass is completed. Have I for once written musique sacrée [sacred music] or merely sacrée musique [damned music]? I was born to opera buffa, as You well know. Little skill, but some heart; that about sums it up. So blessed be Thou and grant me Paradise.

Translation

Kyrie: Lord have mercy upon us, Christ have mercy upon us, Lord have mercy upon us.

Gloria: Glory be to God on high and on earth peace to men of good will. We praise Thee, we bless Thee, we adore Thee, we glorify Thee. We give Thee thanks for Thy great glory. O Lord God! O heavenly King! O God, the father Almighty! O Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son! O Lord God! Lamb of God! Son of the Father.

O Thou, who takest away the sins of the world! have mercy upon us. receive our prayer. O Thou, who sittest at the right hand of the Father! have mercy upon us. receive our prayer.

For Thou art Lord, Thou alone art most high, O Jesus Christ! together with the Holy Ghost in the glory of God the father. Amen.

Credo: I believe in one God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth; of all things visible and invisible. I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten son of the Father before all ages. God of Gods, Light of Light, True God of true god; Begotten, not made; consubstantial to the father, by Whom all things were made; Who for us men and for our Salvation, came down from heaven,

[And] He became incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, and was made man. He was crucified also for us; suffered death and was buried.

And on the third day He arose again according to the Scriptures. And He ascended into heaven, to sit at the right hand of the Father. And He is to come again, with glory to judge both the living and the dead; of whose kingdom there shall be no end. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Lord the Giver of life; Who preceedeth from the Father and the Son; who, with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified; Who spoke by the prophets. I believe in one baptism for remission of sins. And I expect the resurrection of the dead, And the life of the world to come. Amen.

Sanctus: Holy is the lord God Sabaoth. Heaven and earth ar full of Thy Glory. Hosanna in the highest! Blessed is he who cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest!

O Salutaris: O victim and salvation who opens wide the gate of heaven, we are oppressed by savage wars, give us your strength, bring us your aid.

Agnus Dei: O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. Grant us peace.
